“ 'I have had only two men in my life I have admired and inspired me. One was my dad, the other is Mr. Baker. I had him for biology, Human Physiology in high school at Owasso. He taught us to think outside the box, Socratic method of teaching, and critical thinking. He instilled in me the love for knowledge and education. He often wore overalls to class. He used to catch flies with his hand, and if a student said, "It wasn't fair." His response was either he didn't anything in the forecast about it being fair today, or, the fair only comes to town once a year, and it's not here. In my opinion, best educator Owasso had and my life was blessed to have known him.'

“ 'Mr. Baker was one of my favorite teachers. He was funny, made learning fun and not only taught biology, but taught us lessons on being good citizens and human beings. I appreciate his service in Viet Nam. My prayers go out to his family.'

“ 'Prayers for all the family and loved ones that Mr. Baker has touched throughout the years. I will always have a special place in my heart for him. In school he taught us a lot and more than just the subject we were learning. I have so many memories of his funny stories he shared. He had nicknames for everyone and he always called me "Pretty Eyes" and still remembered me all these years later as such. I'm glad I was able to get reacquainted with Mr. Baker again. He truly is a special man. Rest In Peace kind soul. '

“ 'Your dear George gave me my first plane ride. I think he had as much fun as I did. You were both so kind to me. Thank you. My thoughts are with you. I'm so sorry. Gretchen'

“ 'Less than a week before his passing, a fellow graduate had asked in a Facebook group that we post who our favorite teacher was from OHS. My post was "Mr. Baker for Biology." I learned more in his class than in any other and with the knowledge gained there I was able to earn eight hours of college credit in Biology via the CLEP test. But I learned more than Biology from Mr. Baker. I learned how humor is motivational, how evolution is not diametrically opposed to the teachings in the Bible and, maybe most important, how NOT to wager a Coke unless my facts are completely checked! My dad and I would fly our Cessna to Whitehorn Cove for a burger and meet Mr. Baker there in his plane. I thought it was so cool to get to see him enjoying another one of his passions. From the stories I have seen of his fishing, it appears that he was passionate about everything in his life all the way to the end of his life on earth. I pray for comfort for his family, knowing he is enjoying his reward in'

“ 'I cannot begin to tell you all the fun stories I have shared over the years with my students about the best teacher I ever had... Mr. Baker. The George Baker version of genetics ("If Aa marries Bb, what will little Finsterwald be?") and reproduction ("bleep-ual" and "a-bleep-ual" reproduction) are classics. The endless victims of his Coke wagers, the voice of God saying "Let there be light" to the person closest to the light switch when the filmstrip was finished, and oh, so many name games. My personal favorite was the class roll, when he called out, "Miss LisenWASP" instead of Lisenbee, and then excusing his mistake by telling me it was the same phylum. Thank you so much for all those memories, Mr. Baker! You were the best!'

“ 'Mr. Baker one of the best teachers Owasso ever had. Owasso has had a lot of great teachers and administrators. I will never forget him and his "yard stick", his cup of coffee, always referring to his students with a Mr. or Miss and when he pointed he always used two fingers (his index and pinky). We didn't even know he was a pilot in the Air Force. I didn't like science but I learned more than Biology from Mr. Baker. I hope the family knows how many young people were influenced by him. I became a teacher, a coach, and an administrator, and Mr. Baker was one of my teachers I tried to emulate. I even copied his method of reading the lunch menu by mispronouncing the words to get the students to lighten up. May God bring peace to the family by celebrating the great life and all the lives that Mr. Baker touched. His life will continue to touch others for a long long time.'
