“ So last week when I got home from work and that morning Rick had gone to work, I found this letter taped to the mirror, which happened quite frequently. But basically it states that sometimes in life there are things that happen and we just can't truly figure out why they happen. When it comes to you being in my life, I know why that happened. I had come to a point in my life that I was just flat out done with caring about anyone or anything, but then out of nowhere you were put in my life and now that has all changed. I know that it was because of you and how much joy you have brought into my life. I am not a major spiritual person, but I truly believe God saved you just for me and did it at this time for a reason. There's not a day that goes by that I am not thankful for you being in my life. I love you so much and I am looking forward to so many more happy days with you. Love Rick

“ Rick I remember the first time I ever met you, it was out at the Cleveland shift and for two days I didn't talk to you and the last day of my shift I was in the kitchen cooking breakfast and you came in and I hadn't said a word and you go Tasha you should stfu your being to loud and at first I didn't know how to take it but then I looked at you and you had that grin on your face and I said I am going to annoy you all day now! At our last work meeting you came in and gave me a side hug and said you look good but you need to stop losing so much weight because I'm starting to gain it. The last shift you and I work together I remember one specific call we went on you decided to start an iv and I remember grabbing a bag of saline to spike it and I remember saying rick I know I am going to sound stupid but which tab do I pull because these don't look like the old ones and you just got that shit eaten grin on your face and said the blue one and I start laughing because I knew what you were thinking! I really looked forward to going to paramedic school and being able to learn from you! This world won't be the same with out you!

“ Rick was my Brother in law. He always had a smile on his face, and he was my daughter Lily's good buddy. He was also my friends first responder. I am grateful he had a passion in saving lives. I know God has a special plan for him in heaven. We shared some good times together. He will be missed at all of our family get togethers. We will miss him always and he will always be in our hearts. “ Rick was one of my favorite people in the world. I worked with him at Pafford EMS, and got pretty close to him. One of the things I'll remember most, is how much he helped me when I was in Paramedic school, whether it was by asking me questions or just listening to me vent when I needed to. What's more, he helped me to actually BECOME a Paramedic, not just in title, but in nature, and I'll never forget that.

Rick, brother. I love you, and I'm going to miss you dearly. Thank you for your help, and for being a brother to me. I'll never, ever forget you.

“ We were classmates in school. Ricky was a fine trumpet player! In 8th grade, me and Ricky competed who would make band Drum Major. Neither of us did. Ricky was always competitive in everything he participated in, whether it was in band or basketball. Rest In Peace buddy. Sorry we never got to do that fishing trip. . Carl
