“ I learned so much about my mother and she learned alot about me in our last few years together. We learned that in a lot of ways we were much more alike than either of us previously wanted to admit. We learned that we both had been victims of lies and rumors from others and sometimes just plain misunderstanding. Most importantly we both learned to love and forgive! Dancing With The Stars starts tomorrow and I imagine I may cry all the way through it. That was only one of the shows we shared. We watched together via text messaging. Love you and miss you Mom!!
