“ I never met sweet Isabella, but Know her grandmother Julie. I felt like I knew Isabella from what was shared on FB. We never know what the future holds. but God does. She's with Him now in a much better place, singing and dancing without any pain, and feeling the love of Jesus ... probably siting on his lap enjoying His love and kindness.

“ I met Isabella during spring break 3 years ago. Since that week we were inseparable. She would come to my work almost daily to play with me. I’m so happy you got to be at my wedding and meet Bevie before you left. I’m going to miss you calling me from Tammy’s phone on my days off, begging to come to wheels and thrills to see you and your sister. We love you so so so much Isabella. 💕

“ I loved watching the love between Isabella and Gabby. When they got out of the car at school every day they would always hug before parting for the day. To know such a love as a sister is a gift.

“ I never got to meet you sweet Isabella I regret not getting to I followed your journey on Facebook hoping God would help you be better so I could see you smile in person. I was terrified when I heard you had organ failure. If I could take back time and see you again I would. Hope you are enjoying heaven and hope to see you some day soon when I join the army of God.

“ I had the honor of teaching Isabella and her little sister, Gabby, in Kindergarten. Isabella, even at 5 years old, was a shining light for all to see. She was brave, smart and loved everyone and will be very missed.

“ Sweet little one , your time on this earth was not long enough. The lord sent down his angels and whispered "too beautiful for this earth". Your Memaw is going to be lost without you (her favorite), she would load that car up with all of you sweet kids and take off, the last time I saw you , you were putting your finger prints on the Tree Photo for your Aunt Gin. You are now an Sweet Angel that we will forever remember and miss. You were a strong beautiful fighter, now your fight is over. Rest Easy Sweet Angel !!!
