“ Mack Brumfield sure was a special man. I only had the opportunity to know him during this past year, and he was an inspiration to me during that brief time.

After spending time with some of his friends and family this week, here are a few things that I learned.

Mack was the kind of man that we just don't see very often any more these days.

- He was a man of character.

- He was an honest man.

- He was a hard worker. He quit school after 3rd grade to work in the cotton field.

- He loved his family. He was one of 10 kids. He loved his children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren.

- He loved his country and fought for our freedom. He served in active duty in Burma during WWII. He served in the Army. Not only have family and friends lost a loved one, but our country has lost a hero. We are thankful for his service and sacrifice for our country.

He set a wonderful example for others to follow.

He loved trading horses and going to the rodeo. He loved bluegrass music.

He was affectionately known as Blue Grandpa by five of his great-grandsons. Every time they saw him, he was wearing a blue shirt.
