

Rodney J. Ray

October 3, 1946 - July 30, 2020

Rodney J. Ray was born October 3, 1946 in McAlister, Oklahoma to J.B. Ray and Mary “Elizabeth” (Self) Ray. He passed from this life Thursday, July 30, 2020 in Owasso, Oklahoma at the age of 73 years. Rodney was raised and educated in Kiowa, Oklahoma and graduated with the Kiowa High School Class of 1964. After high school, he briefly attended classes at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, Oklahoma, but decided to enlist in the United States Army. Rodney served his country honorably in Vietnam, earning two purple heart medals and a bronze star medal. After returning from Vietnam, he married his first wife, Paula Sue (Adams) Ray and had two children, Russell and Robin. He graduated with a bachelor’s in Political Science from Northeastern State University in Tahlequah, Oklahoma in 1971. Rodney later married Karen Sue (Hannah) Ray. He and Karen have made Owasso their home since 1985. Rodney spent most of his working life as the City Manager in Owasso for almost 30 years. He was a faithful and active member at Freedom Church in Owasso for the past 20 years. Rodney enjoyed a variety of pastimes such as tooling around in his GM convertible, gardening, trap shooting, and entertaining his grandkids and family.

Rodney was passionate about public service and was quick to share the Starfish Story, a story about changing the world one small step at a time, with anyone who had never heard of its lesson. The lesson was this: You might not be able to change the entire world, but you can change a small part of it, for someone. Rodney told the story in a thoughtful and meaningful way.

After graduating from Northeastern State University, Rodney joined Oklahoma Congressman Ed Edmondson's staff, where his career in public service and politics began. He later served as Oklahoma's Community Development Director before being named City Manager of Jenks in 1976. In 1982, Rodney was a candidate for Oklahoma Lieutenant Governor. His campaign slogan: "Ray is the Way for Oklahoma."

But Rodney's greatest professional achievement began in 1986, when he was named City Manager of Owasso. For nearly 30 years, he led Owasso's transformation from a small struggling town to the prosperous and burgeoning city it is today. He used his great understanding of the mechanics of government to secure funding for needed infrastructure and to attract the attention and investments of businesses.

The City of Owasso recently wrote: "Rodney focused his efforts, energy and vision on providing a solid foundation for public safety, basic infrastructure and fiscal stability for Owasso... Many of the philosophies and programs he started are still foundational today in setting Owasso apart from other Oklahoma cities and towns."

Those he leaves behind who hold many cherished memories include:

“ Prayers lifted up for the Ray family at this time of loss. Recall the opportunities to interact with Rodney when I was a staff member at First Baptist Church. Found him to heart for churches and their desire to be community involved with city plans.

“ I succeeded Rodney as City Manager of Jenks in 1981. Over the course of my early years at Jenks, Rodney would call me having heard from a friend about some undertow political matter in Jenks that had the potential to affect my tenure there. He would offer some advise on the matter in order to smooth things out. He was always right on point. As it happened he and I worked together for our sister cities until our retirements. Rodney did great work for Owasso, and he was an exceptional colleague.
