“ Everyone is saying prayers but Zach didn't even pray and he was a better man than all of you illuminati demon worshipers. Zach Collins best man I've ever met other than the real Jesus. If there's a man who wasn't saved that got saved when he died it's this man right here. -DB

“'My thoughts and prayers are with Jim, Tammy, Hunter and Paige. Since my son Michael Berry and Zach were great friends since D1 at Mills Elementary our family was very close. My heart is hurting for the pain they are going through. Zach will be missed by so many. He was so caring, loving and a good friend to so many. My fondest memory was when our family went camping and rafting down the Illinois. Collins in one raft and Berrys in another. Larry had fell off the back of our raft and it was hard for me to control the raft due to high and fast current. Zach seen I was in trouble and he jumped out in the current thinking he was going to save Mike and us. Thats the type of friend and person he was. All of us will miss him especially my son who played football, baseball, basketball together and many sleep overs. Fly high #27. We love you!'

“'Our heartfelt condolences go out to the Collins family. Zach played football with our son, Wade, in high school and that is how we came to know him. As parents who also lost a son this year, we deeply feel your loss. Our prayers are for you and yours to find some peace, one breath at a time.'
